Guidance Notes for Applicants

Introduction

The Faculty of Advocates is conscious that lack of means, during pupillage, may constitute an obstacle to those who wish to practice as Advocates. It therefore offers annual scholarships the purpose of which is to afford assistance to Intrants, who intend to practice at the Scottish Bar.

Two scholarships are available: the Lord Reid Scholarship and the Faculty Scholarship. The Lord Reid Scholarship is awarded in honour of the late Lord Reid of Drem, who generously bequeathed sums to the Faculty with the intention that they be used for educational scholarships. One Lord Reid Scholarship is usually awarded annually, to the outstanding applicant. A variable number of Faculty Scholarships are given each year, generally carrying a lesser financial award than the Lord Reid Scholarship. All decisions on awards are made by the Faculty of Advocates' Scholarship Committee, appointed annually by the Dean of Faculty.

Criteria

The principal consideration will be to encourage and assist persons of talent and ability to enter the profession of advocate. In considering whether to make an award, the Committee will therefore wish to consider the following factors in relation to each individual applicant: academic merit (including strength of law and other degrees), postgraduate qualifications, relevant academic or professional teaching experience, publications (books, articles, or other), professional experience, any areas of special legal interest or experience, and financial resources.

Scholarships are awarded on the understanding that it is the applicant's intention to pursue a career in active practice at the Scottish Bar on completion of the devilling period. Such an intention must be clearly indicated at the time of making the application. Any scholar who does not complete devilling and enter practice for three years thereafter may be required to repay any scholarship. The Committee will of course take into account personal circumstances in deciding whether to seek recovery.

An offer of a scholarship will be withdrawn if the successful applicant does not commence devilling in the October immediately following the making of the award. The withdrawn award may be offered to another unsuccessful applicant, distributed among the successful applicants, or retained in the scholarship fund, at the discretion of the Committee. If such an applicant later decides to commence devilling in a subsequent year and again seeks a scholarship, he or she must re apply. Any new application will be considered along with other applications made in that year.

Amount of Awards

The size and number of scholarship awards is entirely at the discretion of the Committee, after consideration of the number and quality of applicants as well as the funds available in any given year. In the last few years the Lord Reid Scholarship and the Faculty Scholarship have carried awards ranging between £1,000 and £4,500.

Procedure

The procedure for awarding scholarships is as follows:

March/April There is no set application form, although clearly any application should address fully the criteria for the making of an award as noted above. This would normally be in the form of a full curriculum vitae together with a brief note of the applicant's financial position. The names of two referees should be given, being persons qualified to attest to the applicant's suitability for an award having regard to the criteria.

April All written applications are considered by the Committee and a short list will be drawn up.

Written references are then sought from the referees given by the short listed candidates. Unsuccessful candidates are notified.

May/June Short listed candidates are called for interview.

Interviews are conducted by the whole Committee, and usually last 20 - 30 minutes. The interview is not intended as a formal test of academic legal knowledge, but rather to amplify the information already provided on the written application and to enable the applicant to demonstrate his or her suitability for an award. Any short listed candidate who is unable to attend for interview at the appropriate time may request in writing that their application be considered in absentia.

Decisions on awards are made as soon as possible following the interviews and candidates notified accordingly.

October Payment of the first instalment of the scholarship.

February Payment of the second instalment of the scholarship.
